country club dance in honor of the visitors. According to the by-laws, which are spelled "buy-laws" on the program, the membership of the society consists of those who have large blocks of dividend paying stock in the leading banks of the country, or have a deep and unsatisfied yearning for the same. The only other requirement for membership being that the candidate come across with a certified check for $10. More than 50 of the visiting and local bankers participated in the society's big annual romp.

The "Speaking."

Judge John Franklin, non-banker, presided and introduced each of the speakers. That was as far as the banker orators ever got, for the banquet was immediately turned into a pure food shower with the prospective speaker the showers. Celery, olives and chunks of bread were passed to the speakers by the courteous bankers present, the aerial delivery system being used instead of the slower means of transit.

Every Woman's Hair Should Be Beautiful

(From Style and Fashion, New York.)

"Beautiful, glossy and lustrous hair is within the reach of every woman who will only try," said Mme. LeClair, the French beauty specialist, today.

"By trying I mean she must use intelligence as well as be willing to put forth the physical effort required. If your hair is dull, brittle, dry and streaked, it means that you are not taking intelligent care of it.

"Stop your scrubbing, rubbing and rinsing. Soap and water shampoo only give you a headache, keep you indoors the better part of a day, and expose you to catching cold.

"Every woman who wants abundant, lustrous hair should use a dry shampoo. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with four ounces of therax. Sprinkle about a tablespoonful of this mixture upon the head, then brush the powder thoroughly through the hair.

"This cleanses the scalp and hair and gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre. In addition to making it light and fluffy, Therax encourages the growth of hair."

LAST CHANCE FOR SAFETY

Mrs. Hibbs Tells How Very Serious Predicament Faced Her and How She Met It With Cardui.

Madisonville, Ky.—"I was taken sick and was confined to my bed, most of the time, for 10 months. I had ulcers and then a tumor. The second doctor that treated me, said the last chance was an operation to remove the tumor, and when the third doctor was called in, he told me it would be very serious and it was doubtful that I would recover. I couldn't consent to the operation, so I decided to try Cardui. When I had taken two bottles, I felt better. In two months, I could go about and do light house work. Now I feel well and my tumor is gone.

I do heartily recommend Cardui to suffering women. I am sure it will cure."

And it will.

We know this, because it has been doing so for more than fifty years.

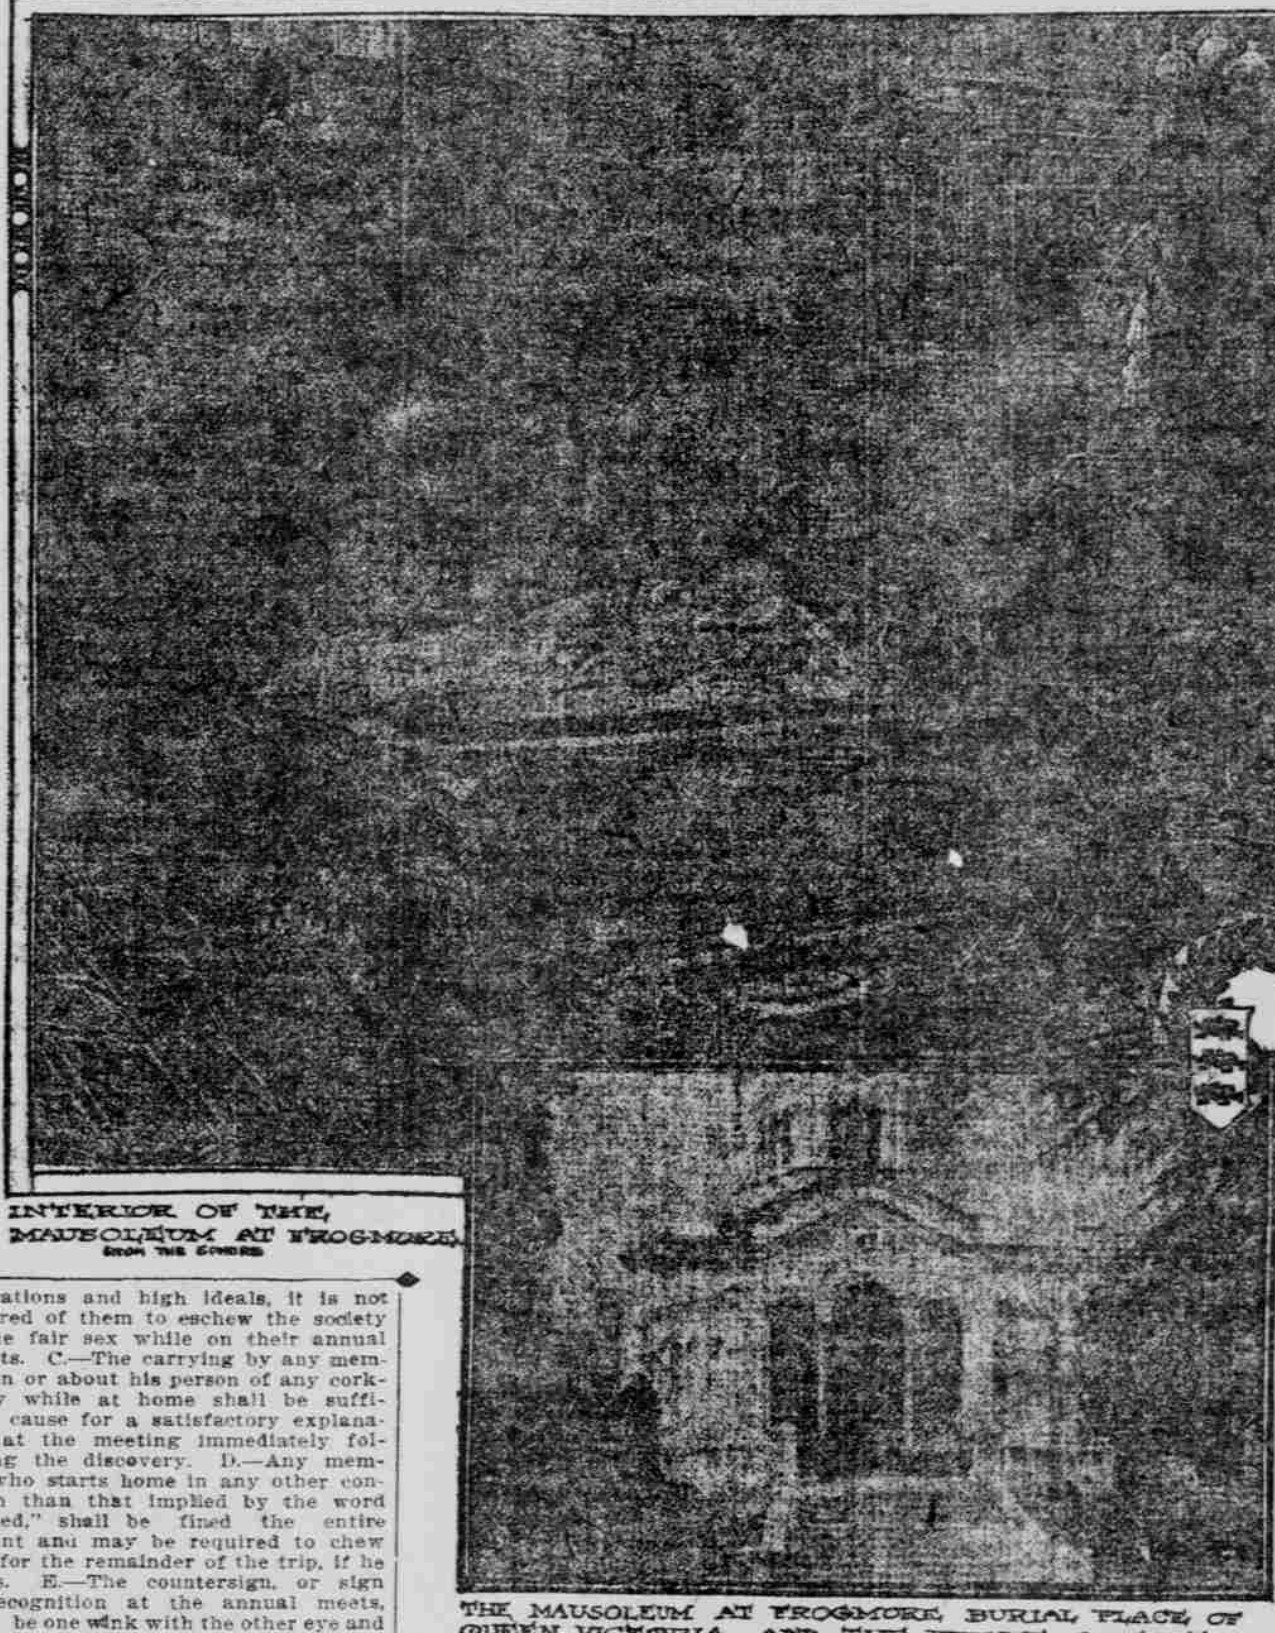

If you need help—and nobody knows so well as you whether you do or not—let Cardui bring back health and strength.

It does good that stays. As a remedy for women's ills, those who have used it say it has no equal.

It will help you. Try it.

Wednesday evening the Country club entertained the bankers with a dance at its clubhouse on the mesa. After the dance the White Way Southern society held its annual banquet in the private dining room of the Zeigler.

During the noon hour adjournment, the members of the American Bankers' association, who are here to attend the state meeting, met with Fred Farnsworth, general secretary of the association, and selected O. E. Dunlap to represent the state on the council of the American association, S. E. Webb, of San Angelo, as the vice president of the association for Texas and H. R. Eldridge, of Houston, as a member of the nominating committee to represent the Texas bankers at the annual meeting of the American Bankers' association to be held in Los Angeles.

"Our Profession" was the subject of an address by M. A. Taylor, president of the First National bank of Ballinger, in the afternoon. He said:

"Many of us, I am inclined to think, are far more interested in ascertaining the truth about the banking business than we are in establishing and maintaining higher and better standards for our worthy calling. For this reason, not only do we who profess to be bankers suffer in the estimation of the critical public, but the institution of banking itself is brought under criticism and suspicion."

"Place, position, environment constitute the individual banker's field of opportunity for good or evil, while the character of the opportunity determines his duty and responsibility. The position of the banker in the social, financial and political world has not always been what it is today. Time was when the banker was regarded as a mere trafficker in money, a shaver of notes and a buyer and seller of exchange. The scourge of the money changers from the temple was the line indictment of their kind, while the fearful penalty of the pound of flesh was predicted for those who owed him aught. He was feared by the weak, hated by the strong, and distrusted by all. Socially, he was the autocrat, cold, cynical and austere. In the religious world he was the opponent of the priesthood, the persecutor of the disciples, the human camel to whom the eye of the needle was impossible. Politically, he was a freebooter, the briber of the tax gatherer, the corruptor of the courts of kings, and the despised enemy of society."

The evolution, such is not the case today. The evolution of the centuries has brought the independent banker to his own, the free American banker to the highest estate enjoyed by man. The country banker is the father-confessor of the rich, the poor, the joyous, the grieving, the high, the low. He is the first to hear the wail of withering drouth, the cry of the starving, the distress and darkest future. He is called upon daily to counsel with the rich, to assist the poor, to rejoice with the happy, and to sympathize with the woe. He is husband to the widow, father to the orphan, and guardian to the minor. Into his keeping is trusted the vast accumulation of the prosperous and the mite of the less fortunate.

Friendship and sentiment.

"The first thing some of us were told when entering the bank as an employee was that there is no room in banking for friendship or sentiment. After a few years' experience and some observation I cannot bring myself to subscribe to such a doctrine. The blind friendship which is silent when it should counsel, and which condones when it should criticize is unworthy the name of friendship, and is entitled to no consideration in banking or elsewhere. The maddening sentiment which blubbers when it should sound and is helpless when it should fight, never finds a home in the breast of a true man, and its possessor never occupies a position of trust or importance. But the friendship and affection which grow out of years of intimate association and satisfactory business relations between the banker and customer are assets whose value are not doubtful, assets which are not subject to the laws of supply and demand. They are assets the value of which do not change with the season, and which are not amenable to the fortunes of politics, the fashions of religion, or the decrees of society. They are assets which any banker may have, and which the successful banker must possess.

The System.

"Our banking system may not be perfect. About it there may be much that is objectionable, but whatever its critics may say of it, they cannot deny that it has withstood the severest tests of the past and has financed the unequalled development of the greatest nation history has ever known."

"That we need some measure of currency reform no careful student of economics will deny; but in the light of past achievement and present conditions, I prefer that reforms come about through the process of evolution, rather than revolution. I am not one of those who believe and preach that the American people are not capable of great constructive legislation. The shades of Andrew Jackson do not disturb me as I study the proposed reform measure, advocated by some of the ablest men of our profession. If time and investigation shall show these measures to be fraught with possibilities of the greatest good for the greatest number, then will our American courage and wisdom write them into law."

"Let us insist upon nobler ideals and demand higher standards of honesty and proficiency for the members of our profession. Let us eliminate from our ranks the class of bankers described in a banker's definition of a panic, which I recently heard. 'A panic means a hell of a time for amateur bankers,' he said."

"Speaking from positive and painful experience, I know that definition to be absolutely correct. The banking business is a poor field for the amateur."

MEETING PLACE IS NOT SELECTED FOR NEXT YEAR

The next meeting place of the Texas Bankers' association will not be decided until the January meeting of the executive committee. This was decided at the closing meeting of the association Wednesday and the meeting place will be selected by the executive committee after all of the applicants for the honor of entertaining the bankers have been filed with the secretary.

LAUNCHING OF A BIG BATTLESHIP

smaller vessels indeed are rated at about a quarter of a knot faster.

The Florida is 521 feet six inches long, nearly as long as a city block; her beam is 88 feet 2½ inches; she draws 28½ feet of water and displaces 21,825 tons light order, while when fully loaded, with her supplies and ammunition she will measure up to 23,000 tons. Her estimated speed is 20.3 knots per hour, which would have been regarded a few years ago as the topnotch for a swift unarmored cruiser. She will carry 260 guns of 16" caliber, which should enable her to make the round trip across the Atlantic at half speed. Parsons turbine engines, built in the New York yard, of the enormous power of 29,000 horse power will maintain the high speed of this big ship and the steam will be supplied by sectional boilers.

Some Big Guns.

The main battery of the ship will consist of 10 12 inch rifles arranged in pairs in turrets. Looking at her now on one would think that the Florida had what is called superposed or double decked turrets like the Kentucky and the Kentucky, but as a matter of fact there are only two guns in each of the five turrets and the second turret in the fore part of the ship is necessarily elevated on a superstructure so as to be able to fire freely over the top of the foremost turret. There is a very formidable secondary battery composed of 16 five inch rapid fire guns, four three pounders, two one pounders and a number of machine guns. There are also 21 inch submerged tubes for torpedoes.

Twelve Inch Armor.

It is believed that the side armor will average about 12 inches and that it will be extended over a length of the ship heretofore uncovered and will be much wider than the ordinary armor in smallest detail in the chief construction of the ship when she rolls in a sea wave.

It will take more than a thousand men to man this great fighting machine; the minimum requirement is 60 officers and 954 enlisted men. The estimated cost of the ship complete is $4,000,000 as fixed in the act of May 13, 1908. Her keel was laid March 9, 1909, so that the naval constructors have reason to be proud of the rapidity with which they have carried on their work.

Hyde Pleads by Counsel.

"If Mr. Hyde used the proper course in bleeding James Moss Hunter," said Mr. Jost, "the treated Col. Swope improperly, provided the latter had applied."

"Dr. Hyde became attentive to the Swope family during the typhoid epidemic merely to have a chance to commit the crimes he is charged with," argued the attorney.
